

What's in the Stars? by Psychic Astrologer Aynne McAvoy

The year certainly is rocking and rolling along! It's February all ready and Valentines day is right around the corner!

First up, let's talk about our happy go lucky buddy Jupiter, the large happy face in the solar system. His happy face is about to become a more thoughtful face, as he moves into retrograde motion in Libra on February 6. This doesn't mean that your luck has taken a hike until June 9, when Jupiter goes direct again. It does mean that you very well could give much more careful thought to some serious decisions that come your way, or find challenges to your belief system. Planetary retrogrades are all about reviewing, rethinking, revisiting old ways of thinking and doing. You may find yourself revising the direction of some of your past ways of thinking. With Jupiter we usually are talking about the higher self, so we are may review or rethink your religious or ethical beliefs. If something is not working or no longer feels right to you, what do you need to do to fix it?

Venus moves into Aries on February 3. This is really not the lovey dovey kind of energy that we would expect for the planet in charge of Valentines' Day! Once again we are going to be noticing some energy that doesn't seem to be a good fit; that seems itchy and uncomfortable in the current placement it's in.

Mars, which is the ruler of Aries, is in this sign all month long. This brings a great deal more power and punch to this time period; not really conducive to snuggling and cuddling. Venus and Mars will be in a conjunction on February 14. Quite frankly folks you are really going to have to work at being in the Valentines' Day mood this year.

Next, we will all experience a lunar eclipse at 22' in Leo on February 10, four days after Jupiter goes retrograde. Remember that lunar eclipses especially are noticeable not only in the house that experiences the eclipse, but the opposite house as well. For example, if you have Pisces in your first house of Self, you have to pay attention to your 7th house of partnerships as well, which would be in Virgo. Remember that with this eclipse, as in all eclipses, what has been concealed will be revealed. Also that the energy of all eclipses starts weeks before the eclipse and lasts weeks afterwards. It's always best to try to avoid making any major changes in your life during this time if possible. You could easily get to the other side of that decision a few weeks later and realize a big oops!

By the way, if you have your natal chart printed out, always check to see if this or any eclipse conjuncts (within a ten degree orb) your natal Sun, natal Moon, or your rising sign. Should this be the case, always be extra cautious during the few days before and after the eclipse.

The Sabian symbol for 22' Leo is: A carrier pigeon fulfilling it's mission.
Keynote: Spirituality, in terms of training for service to mankind.

Moving on, we see that Jupiter retrograde in Libra, is in square to Pluto in Capricorn all month long. Jupiter actually turns into retrograde motion on Super Bowl Sunday. Hmm. This could be a really interesting game!

Mercury moves into Aquarius on February 7, where we might all have more discussions on what is better for the all, rather than what is better for the few. Aquarius is usually humanitarian minded.

Uranus in Aries continues to trine (compatible) Saturn in Sagittarius all month. (I've spoken about that in prior columns)

The solar eclipse occurs in 8' Pisces on February 26. Read above what I said about all eclipses in general. The Sabian symbol for 8' Pisces is: A girl blowing a bugle. Keynote: A call to participation in the service of the race, as an evolutionary crisis approaches. This may be something to keep in mind, and watch what is going on around us very carefully. As I've often said, astrology is here to give you kind of a AAA trip tik...warning you where the construction and detours are but promoting where the good straight clear roads are. I am giving you the information, but it's up to you to make a different choice if need be.
