

What's in the Stars? by Psychic Astrologer Aynne McAvoy March 2018

First I'd like to do a reboot on the solar eclipse that occurred on February 15, 2018. Even though this is currently late January as I write, I noticed something that was missed while writing the February column and I need to just add a paragraph or so; it is THAT important!

The 02/15/18 Solar Eclipse in Aquarius at 27.8 will be (was by the time you read this) conjunct the United States natal moon at 27' in the third house!

WHY is this such a big deal? Because as you know the moon rules women, emotions, instinct, feelings, etc. The third house rules communications, among other things. This is like the Super Bowl kick off for women all over this country only bigger. Much bigger. This is huge! You will see more and more women standing up for what is right, speaking out against what is wrong, and doing whatever needs to be done to fix the injustices. This one eclipse has the power to bring in HUGE changes across our country and women will be at the front of the line!

We will have another blue moon situation again in March (as we did in January). A blue moon is simply the second full moon in the same month. It is a little bit unusual but not extremely so. The first full moon is on March 1, in Virgo. The second full moon will be on March 31 in Libra.

The first few days of March will bring us a conjunction of the Sun in Pisces and Neptune in Pisces, exact on March 4. Of course, wherever the Sun currently is in the sky is the guiding force for the month. A conjunction is a powerful aspect. This conjunction with Neptune (the planet of illusion and delusion) tells us to look around us with fresh new eyes and see the illusion for what it is. Considering the brightness of the Sun shining on this aspect, I doubt if many will manage to evade the what will be put right in front of their faces. Those who have been doing their internal higher power work might find the jolt to be not quite as upsetting.

Venus enters Aries on March 5. This is a bit of an uncomfortable fit and we may find ourselves too obsessed this month with wanting our own way and being self absorbed rather than looking at the bigger picture of kindness and understanding.

Jupiter in Sagittarius turns retrograde on Thursday March 8. Depending on how this falls into your natal chart, you may find yourself more introspective than your usual jovial looking-for-a-party self. Not that you will be all doom and gloom; you'll just be more likely to keep your own counsel.

Much of the month we all will be experiencing a trine (harmonious aspect) between Mars in Sagittarius and Uranus in Aries. This aspect will be exact on March 11. As with all trines, this aspect brings gifts of sudden, unexpected yet pleasant surprises with it. This is like a lovely wrapped gift left on your doorstep. As with any gift you can accept it or tuck it away in a closet. Your choice. March 11 is when we all will spring ahead for the next several months also.

St Patrick's Day will bring us a square in the afternoon between the Moon in Pisces and Mars in Sagittarius. Looking at the timing of this, the parades should be over and most of the parties not begun yet, so hopefully this feisty aspect won't affect too many.

The spring equinox follows a few days later chased by a Mercury Retrograde a few days later in Aries. Mercury (who rules all manner of communications) in Aries is an even bolder warning to make sure you are understood when speaking or writing, and double checking all appointments, etc. This aspect carries a real potential for hurt feelings over misunderstandings. Keep that in mind and speak accordingly.
