

September 2017 What's in the Stars? By Psychic Astrologer Aynne McAvoy

At the time of this writing, there were protests in Charlottesville, VA and people were killed and injured today. If you go back and read my column for this month of August 2017, this is the kind of thing I was warning you about. This solar eclipse in particular is very strong and potent due to the aspects made with the US natal chart. The energy from this very powerful eclipse will continue months to come. I am watching the build up to this eclipse as I write and worry for outcome of some things.

As we look at September, at least we are starting off much quieter and with a much needed break. You can only be running around on super charged adrenaline just so long before burn out happens; mental and physical.

The retrograde in Mercury continues, and Mercury has moved back into Leo. Those folks who may have some identity issues may really have a problem with this retrograde movement for these few days. Leo likes to be center stage, and the retrograde is doing a push back on that.

September 2 brings us a trine between Mars in Leo to Uranus (retrograde) in Aries. I would expect something totally wild, unexpected and off the chain to occur on that day.

Labor Day September 4 is a relatively quiet day, and great for relaxing and kicking back. September 5 we see Mars move from the sign of Leo into the sign of Virgo. Mars of course is all systems go, and actually this is the perfect placement for the start of the new school year. (Even though I live in Florida now it is well engrained in me that the first day of school is two days after labor day in New York!) Mercury also turns into direct motion and is a much more auspicious start to the school year.

Venus enters the sign of Virgo on September 19. While Venus is transiting here, your loved one will be much more interested in "just the facts ma'am" than your embellishments of the story. If you want to keep the peace, tell the straight up truth.

The sun enters Libra on September 22 which is also the first day of fall, or the autumnal equinox. The word equinox implies balance of things, (and of course the sign of Libra is the scales.) Hopefully by the time we reach this date we will be in better internal balance than we have been for awhile now. I love to remind people that you can balance an egg on it's end on this day as well as the spring equinox. Try it!

Mercury enters this sign of balance (Libra) on the 29 of September, and I hope all our communications will reflect greater balance and harmony.
